Before the Adjustments box appears, place your mouse cursor over the layer and press the Del key twice to delete the entire layer. 17. The World Health Organization on Friday urged Israel to lift its seven-day lockdown on the Palestinian territories as it faces a huge spike in new coronavirus cases. There have been 3,492 confirmed cases of the novel coronavirus in the Palestinian territories, including 243 deaths, the WHO said Friday. The UN body also said the country's healthcare system is creaking under the strain of the pandemic, and warned of the consequences of an outbreak in the Gaza Strip. "The health system of the Palestinian Territories is already overstretched, with the number of cases reportedly growing daily," the WHO said. Get The Times of Israel's Daily Edition by email and never miss our top stories Free Sign Up "Although local health authorities have implemented strict public health measures to limit the outbreak," it added, "they are unable to cope with the extent of the outbreak." The agency also warned of the effects of a widespread outbreak in Gaza. "The closure of the Gaza Strip will hinder the ability to effectively contain the outbreak," it said, adding that "there is an urgent need to resume the crossings between the Gaza Strip and the West Bank and to allow the free movement of people and goods between the two areas." The WHO called on Israel and the Palestinian Authority to lift its siege on Gaza during the pandemic, adding that "the population of the Gaza Strip is currently suffering from a humanitarian crisis that could worsen if there is no end to the crisis in the Strip in the near future." Israel has strictly imposed a near-total lockdown on the Strip for seven days. Closures have been lifted for patients at Erez crossing between Gaza and Israel, but the crossings are still closed for anyone else. Israel has so far reported 2,342 cases of coronavirus, with at least 267 deaths. More than 20,000 Israelis have tested positive for COVID-19 and 120 people have so far died from the disease.  $\mathbb{R}^3; \mathbb{R}^2$  and that  $\mathcal{H}$

What's New In?

Ask HN: Seeking new home for my startup. PHP and Nginx fan. Thoughts? - lapryl I am looking for a new home for my startup. It runs on PHP 5 and uses Nginx as a reverse proxy. It is generally used as a command-line web-server. It is not very heavy on the resources and it can handle lots of concurrent connections. The market it is serving is mostly german speaking markets and the company is slowly expanding. It has some business-y features like shipping rates, user-groups, and customer login/logout. We did not catch the eye of any other hosting company and so I am looking for a partner. In your opinion would you recommend it, or is it just me? ===== dragonwriter > The market it is serving is mostly german speaking markets and the company > is slowly expanding. It has some business-y features like shipping rates, > user-groups, and customer login/logout. This is a huge red flag. Unless that language is vastly dominant in your target market (as I suspect it is not -- if it were, it wouldn't matter that it is "slowly expanding") this is going to make it a no-go. ----- jcfrei I don't get it. Why does your company exist in the first place? If you sell bought of stuff and charge money for it, a company that does so is obviously not going to be profitable for you. If you're offering something that's free/paid for, then it should be profitable for you. ----- ma3rten I think that the fact that you said that you are using PHP makes it the least appealing to me. I mean, I would not hesitate to give it a look, but I would not use it for anything other than maybe a personal blog and a simple wandering website. ----- ddemchuk Very risky strategy. I know tons of web developers that refuse to go with anything under php due to ancient codebases ~~~ ddemchuk My company is pretty large, we have 60 people. 5-10 years ago when my company became a big company, most of our clients were using PHP. As a result, most of our team ended up using PHP. It's not that we started
